CBA was commissioned to undertake a Landscape Character Assessment for the Lake District National Park, which involved preparation of landscape guidelines to help conserve and enhance the Park's character, sense of place and local distinctiveness. The study is the only comprehensive assessment undertaken of the entire Lake District, the first National Park designated in the UK and the birthplace of the conservation movement. It provides a new approach to understanding in more detail the distinctive character of the different landscapes found within the Park and their sensitivities to change. This new knowledge continues to contribute to decisions about how these landscapes should be managed for future generations.
